

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Official Set Soon to Return to the City for Coming Season—Some of Next Winter's Charming Debutantes.

WASHINGTON is awakening from the lethargy into which it settled the first of July. Official households are being put in readiness for the return of their occupants, and the fast-approaching date which has been set for the return to the White House of the President's family will find a number of representatives of official society already installed for the winter.

Perhaps not in years have vacation days been marked by so many interesting romances in Cabinet circles as have been made known to the public this summer. Announcement of the two engagements in the family of the Secretary of State and Mrs. Root occasioned surprise and deep interest in Washington, where Miss Edith Root and her brother are popular, and have taken active parts in entertaining. They have kept in close touch with the friends of their early youth and thus maintain their places in the affections and lives of their associates in New York, as well as in Washington. The wedding dates, both of which have been set for this fall, will postpone until late the return to this city of Mrs. Root, so one delightful house will remain closed until Thanksgiving time or thereabouts, socially at least.

Another family to have a member victimized by the wiles of Cupid is that of the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. McCall, whose son was married during their stay in California. Mrs. McCall accompanied the Secretary upon his return to Washington last Friday, and is busily engaged with household affairs. Mrs. McCall carries with her the wholesome and invigorating air of her native State and seems to instill in others a cheerful disposition, which is indicated by her gracious manners and care-free face. A charming hostess and an amiable companion to young as to older people, one can hardly associate her with the idea of a mother-in-law.

Arrangements have been made for the return to-morrow of the family of the Postmaster General. Mrs. Meyer and her daughters were among the earliest to desert Washington in the summer, and their long absence, together with recent sickness, can be assigned as the reason for their return before the beginning of the social season. Going in June to Boston, they entertained and were entertained by the Duc d'Abuzzi, with whom their friendship dated back to the period when the Postmaster General was Ambassador to Rome. They spent several very busy weeks in Massachusetts and later went to a camp in the Adirondacks, where they stayed until illness invaded the family.

The Secretary of Commerce and Labor will be joined by Mrs. Straus to-morrow also, and the Italian villa will again be the scene of many and delightful social gatherings, which it will be recalled, were a feature of their first season in Washington.

Of the plans of the other Cabinet families as yet little is known. The Vice President's family are still at Magnolia, where they went about the middle of the summer. Mrs. Fairbanks continues in feeble health, and there is little hope that she will be able to take an active part in society this winter. Mrs. Taft, of course, will not take her place as a hostess until after the beginning of the season, owing to the trip upon which she is now accompanying her husband.

Mrs. Bonaparte will not come to Washington at all except for brief stays until after the New Year. Mrs. Cortelyou is still away, and will not return to her home here until about the 1st of October, and Mrs. Garfield, with her pretty and interesting children, will not return until a little later.

With the approach of a new social season the mind naturally wanders to debutantes, each winter's buds being always of absorbing interest to the younger element of society. Rumor has long had it that Miss Ethel Roosevelt will be one of this season's buds, and though no authoritative information has been given out on the subject, it is, indeed, difficult to picture the candid, youthful, and unworldly daughter of the President entertaining ideas of beaux and balls. As a whole, some unaffected schoolgirl it would be difficult to imagine a purer ideal than Ethel Roosevelt, and the energy and enthusiasm of her father are combined in her nature with the calmness and self-control for which Mrs. Roosevelt is loved.

Miss Carol Newberry will make her bow in December, and a prettier and more charming girl has rarely been introduced to Washington society. Miss Newberry spent last year in Europe, finishing at school near Paris, and returned to the country in June, coming to Washington for a short stay before going with her mother to Watch Hill, R. I., where they spend their summers. Miss Newberry strongly resembles her mother, who is one of the handsomest women in Washington, and a charming and clever hostess.

Another debutante, unusually pretty and winning, is Miss Constance Hoyt, the second daughter of the Solicitor General and Mrs. Hoyt, of Rhode Island avenue. Miss Hoyt is patrician in her style of beauty, with fresh, beautiful coloring and graceful carriage. Her sister, Mrs. Philip Hinchman, was a bride of last season, and it was at the wedding of her sister that Miss Hoyt figured as a grown young lady for one evening only. She, however, immediately resumed her role of schoolgirl and was to be seen only at informal affairs for very young girls during the remainder of the season.

Miss Cecelia May, second daughter of Col. and Mrs. Henry May, also comes in the same set of belles-to-be, and is equally as attractive as her sister, Miss Isabel May, who has been considered a belle in her very smart set of friends. Miss Isabel May recently has been reported engaged to Count Hatzfeldt, of the German Embassy, though there has been no official announcement. The May family has a large and distinguished foreign connection, and both the daughters of Col. and Mrs. May are accomplished and attractive. Not the least of their many distinguished traits of character is the strong bond of affectionate regard and companionship that exists in the entire family circle.

number of entertainments given in her honor by her grandmother and a large circle of friends in Washington.

Miss Eleanor Ridgely will also be a debutante this winter, after a year abroad. She is the younger of the two attractive daughters of the Comptroller of the Currency, William Barret Ridgely, and is a very pretty blonde. The wedding of her sister, Miss Catherine Ridgely, is the absorbing topic in the family just at present.

WEDDINGS-ENGAGEMENTS

The marriage of Miss Helen Browning Gardner and Mr. J. Maury Dove, Jr., took place last Thursday in the Church of the Sacred Heart, at Vineyard Haven, Mass., the summer home of Mrs. Gardner and Mr. and Mrs. J. Maury Dove.

A reception, to which only the relatives of the bride and bridegroom were asked, followed the ceremony at the new home of Mrs. Dove's mother. Mr. and Mrs. Dove will make their home at the Westmoreland, in this city, where an apartment has been prepared for them.

Miss Bertha Parsons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Parsons, was quietly married to Mr. Jasper A. Smith last Wednesday, the ceremony taking place in Baltimore at noon, at the residence of the bridegroom's brother, Mr. Stuart J. Smith. Only members of the family witnessed the ceremony. The marriage is announced of Mr. Bayard L. Johns and Miss Grace Shreve. The ceremony, which was performed August 29 by Rev. Dr. Stratton in St. Paul's Church, Hagerstown, Md., was a quiet one, owing to the illness of the bride's brother. The couple have gone on a trip to Albany, New York City, Atlantic City, and Philadelphia, and will be at home at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. S. Shreve, 122 K street southeast, after September 22.

The marriage of Miss Daisy L. Bramlett and J. C. McCravy, both formerly of South Carolina, is announced. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles F. Winbiger, and after a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. McCravy returned to Washington and are at home at 33 D street northeast.

Miss Meta Virginia Burke, the charming and attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Burke, of New Market, Va., was quietly married Thursday at high noon to Charles H. Moore, a prominent business man of New Market. The wedding took place in the Third Street M. E. Church, South, Rev. W. H. Ballinger, pastor, officiating. The bride, who was handsomely gowned in a tailored suit of champagne chiffon Panama cloth and carried cream roses, was given in marriage by her brother, Joseph P. Burke, of this city. Mrs. Frank J. Sloan, cousin of the bride, of Mount Rainier, Md., attended in a tailor-made suit of blue chiffon Panama and carrying white asters, acted as matron of honor. Miss Margaret V. Mauch, of the bride's home, was maid of honor, and was gowned in white organdie and carried pink asters. Frank J. Sloan, of Mount Rainier, was best man. The bride, bridegroom, and bridal party had a beautifully appointed breakfast at the Raleigh. They took the evening boat to Raleigh. They will take the train for the Jamestown Exposition, and will visit a number of the Eastern cities before returning to New Market about October 1, where they will be at home.

Miss Irene Catharine Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith, and Mr. Clarence Aloysius Hurley were married Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock, at St. Peter's Church, Second and C streets southeast, by Rev. Father Curley. The bride was dressed in crepe de chine trimmed with lace. Her hair was adorned with plumes, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid, Miss Kathryn Haslett, of Philadelphia, wore white French batiste and carried pink roses. The best man, Mr. Richard G. Smith, Jr., of this city, a brother of the bride, a reception followed for the families and immediate friends of the contracting parties. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Hurley left for an extended tour. They will receive their friends at 29 Eleventh street southeast after October 1.

Miss B. G. Williams and Mr. J. A. Lefingwell were quietly married Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, at Epiphany Chapel, Twelfth and C streets southwest. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. Freeland Peters. The bride was given away by her grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Mulloy. Those who witnessed the ceremony were Mrs. H. T. Smith, mother of the groom; Miss Grace Williams, and Miss Virginia Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Lefingwell will reside at the Roosevelt apartments.

The marriage of Miss Amy Angell Collier, of New York, daughter of Mrs. Peter Collier and niece of President James B. Angell, of the University of Michigan, and Mr. Gilbert Holland Montague, of New York, took place at 4 o'clock in the Church of the Epiphany, New York City. The best man will be Joseph O. Proctor, Jr., of Boston, and the maid of honor, Miss Dorothy Montague.

The marriage of Miss Amy Angell Collier, of New York, daughter of Mrs. Peter Collier and niece of President James B. Angell, of the University of Michigan, and Mr. Gilbert Holland Montague, of New York, took place at 4 o'clock in the Church of the Epiphany, New York City. The best man will be Joseph O. Proctor, Jr., of Boston, and the maid of honor, Miss Dorothy Montague.

Miss Grace Jarvis, granddaughter of Mrs. James McMillan and the late Senator McMillan, will also be introduced to society this winter. Miss Jarvis completed her education abroad last spring, and came to America early in the summer with her aunt, Miss McMillan, whose wedding to Sir John Lane Harrington is scheduled for next month at Magnolia. Her debut will be marked by a sonor Miss Amy Aldrich, a cousin of the bride. The ushers will be Chester Holmes Aldrich, Judge William M. Wadhams, Mark Sullivan, Harold Benjamin Clark, B. H. Inness Brown, and Medberry Blanchard, all of New York City.

Miss Collier is the daughter of the late Peter Collier, formerly chief chemist of the Department of Agriculture in this city and later director of the United States experiment station at Geneva, N. Y. She is the cousin of Richard Aldrich, who married Miss Margaret Chanler, sister of Lieut. Gov. Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, and of Dr. Frank Angell, of Stanford University, who married Miss Louise Bayard, daughter of the late Secretary of State, Thomas F. Bayard.

The marriage of Miss Martha M. Newman, of Mechanicsburg, Ohio, and Mr. Dana B. Johannes, of Washington, D. C., took place at St. Mark's Church, Third and A streets southeast, at noon Thursday, Rev. William Levering Devries officiating. The bride's dress was a gray traveling suit. Among those present were Mrs. Eliza Newman, the bride's mother, of Mechanicsburg, Ohio; Miss Magdalene Newman, the bride's sister, of Dayton, Ohio; the family of the groom, Mrs. Marie Webb, of New York; Misses Perin, Jennings, and Stella Owens, of New York; Johannes left on a trip West immediately after the wedding, and will return about October 1. They will reside at the home of the groom's parents in Takoma Park, D. C.

Miss Lillian Marie Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Mitchell, of Branchville, Md., was married Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock to Ernest Eugene Emerson, of Berwyn, Md. The ceremony, which took place in the home of the bride, was performed by Rev. Mr. La Roche, of the Episcopal Church, Beltsville, Md.

The bride was attired in a princess gown of cream lace, and wore a large bouquet of cream roses. The maid of honor was Miss Susie Allen Mitchell, a sister of the bride. The bridesmaid was Miss Florence S. Steinbrener, of Washington. Both wore gowns of light blue organdie, handsomely trimmed with Valenciennes lace, and carried bridesmaid roses. The wedding march was played by Miss Alice G. Sims, of Linden, Md.

The bride entered the parlor with her father, who gave her in marriage. Maurice A. Emerson, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Emerson left for their bridal trip immediately after the reception, which followed the ceremony. Mrs. Emerson wearing a traveling gown of tan and cream striped Panama, with tan hat to match. Upon their return they will make their home at Branchville with the bride's parents.
